

Computacenter Wins Cisco Enterprise Partner of the Year Award at Cisco Partner Summit 2011

Computacenter announced today that it is the recipient of a Cisco Partner Summit regional award for Enterprise Partner of the Year for the second year running. Cisco unveiled the winners earlier this month at its annual channel partner conference in New Orleans.

"Cisco works diligently with all of its channel partners, and it is an honour to announce Computacenter as a Cisco Partner Summit regional award recipient," said Bernadette Wightman, Managing Director of Channels at Cisco UK and Ireland. "The Enterprise Partner of the Year award presented to Computacenter recognises its performance and expertise as a Cisco channel partner in the UK markets in 2010."

Computacenter's ongoing investments in Cisco solutions, from TelePresence and enterprise networking to Unified Computing System (UCS) and vBlock technologies, underpinned by cost-effective industrialised services, enabled the company to retain its leadership position.

"By optimising their datacenter and network infrastructures and helping them take advantage of new technologies, we enable our customers to enhance staff productivity and competitive advantage."

Duncan Gooding, Networking Business Director at Computacenter, commented: "As one of the UK's leading Cisco Gold partners, we help organisations empower their businesses through effective networking and communications. By optimising their datacenter and network infrastructures and helping them take advantage of new technologies, we enable our customers to enhance staff productivity and competitive advantage."
